

Machine readable rights

A niche story

1. Standardization

After 15 years of research and 150.000€ of investment

- The new flower is registered
- The new flower is genetically copyright protected
- The name is given and deposited

2. The farmer goes to market

- This new tulip will rock the world!

→ It's the Tulipa "Fashion Look"

3. Image and metadata

Goes to studio for a great image

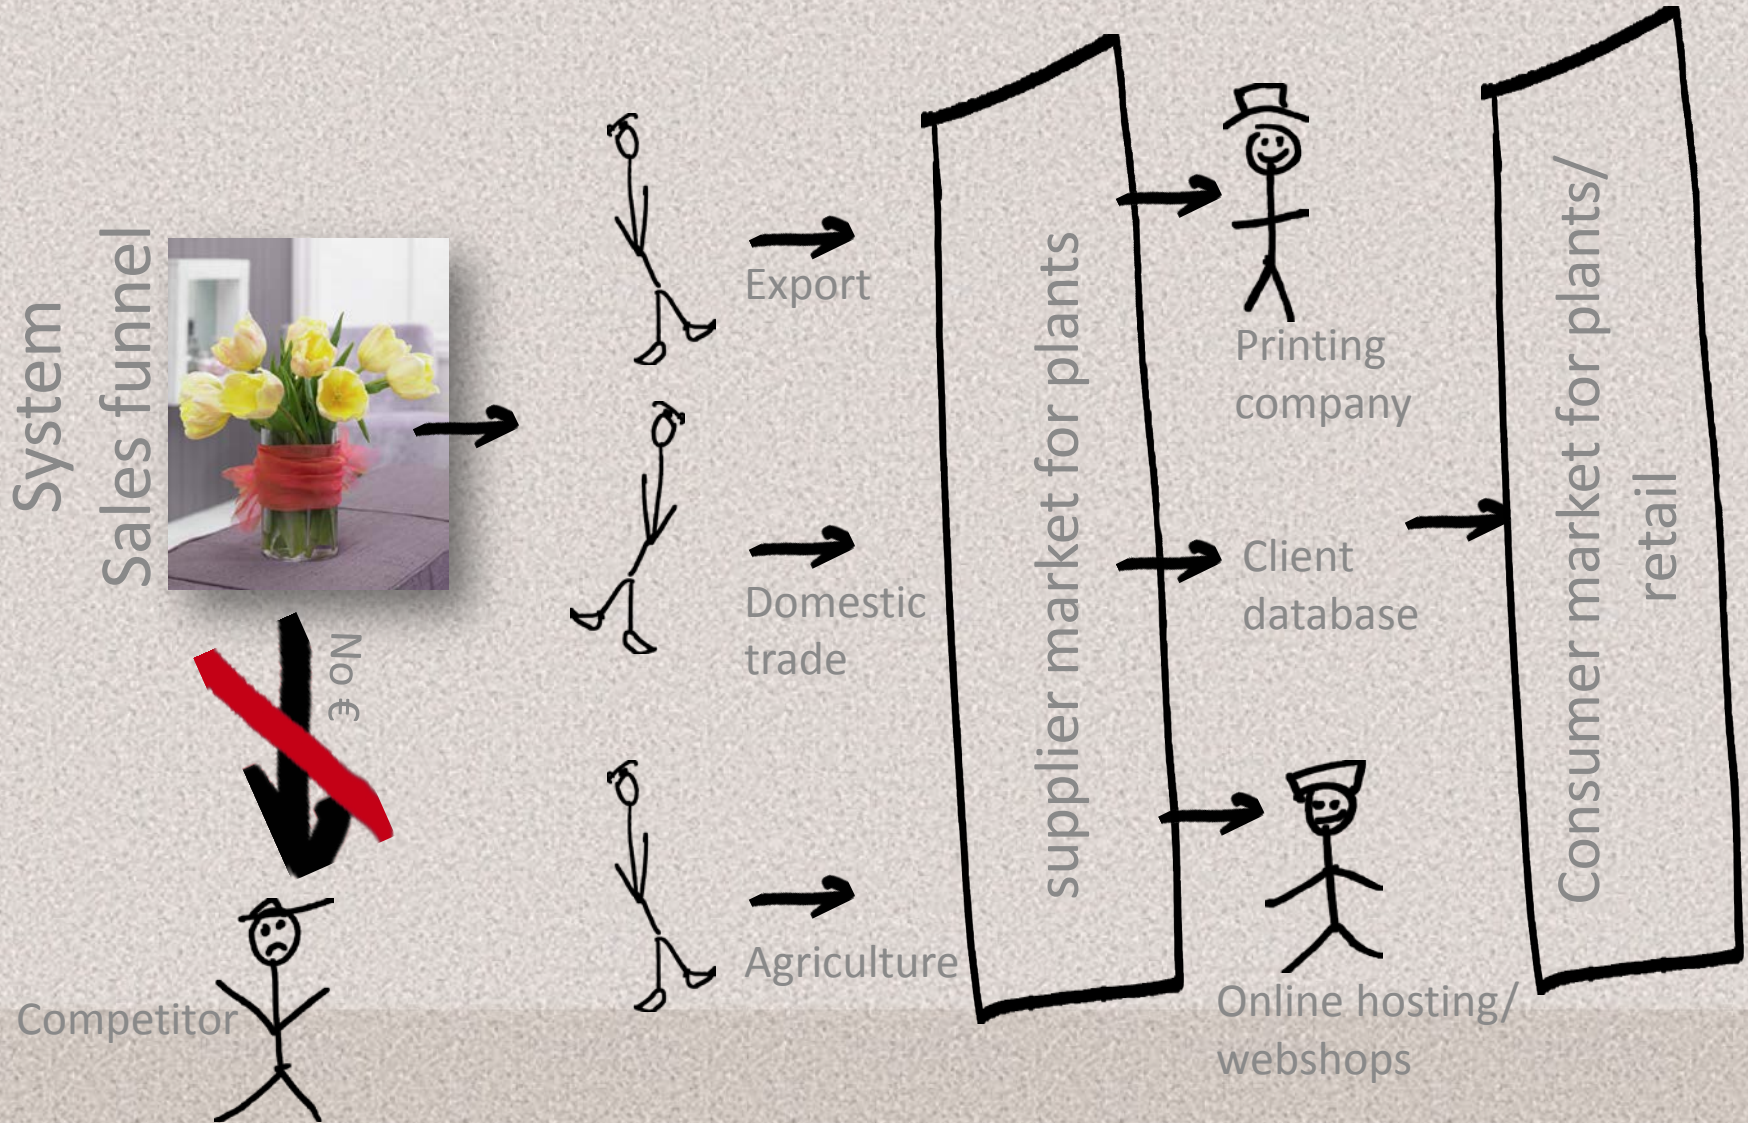

Tools for the image:

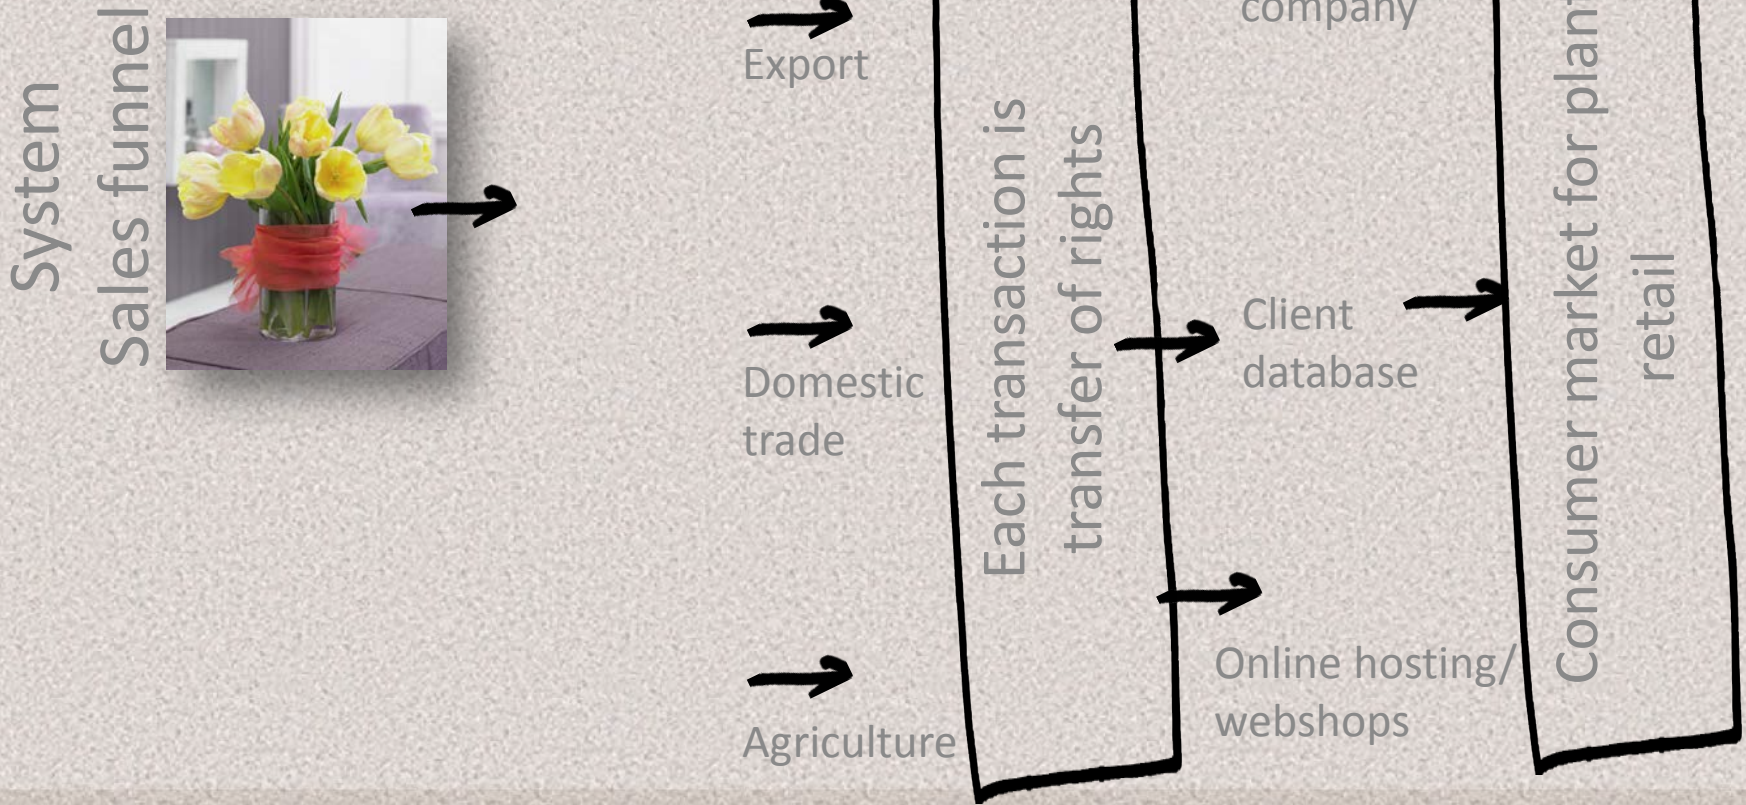

- Exif
- Project ID
- Standardization data
- His preferences
- Search standard
- Do's and dont's: rights

4. Farmers' horticultural chain

4. Transfer of rights

5. Extra reach

He's heard:

Content
marketing creates demand

Editorial reach

6. 2nd industry – editorial publishing

7. But...

8. Partner submission route

Nice partner #1

9. Partner submission route

Great partner # 2

10. In a nutshell: Pull is created

11. Understanding rights

Channel partner

Competitor

12. On machine readable rights

1. Creative control over metadata on each transition
  - understand unique value
  - use relevant metadata
  - Optimize for system integration
  - target metadata to client expectation
2. Maintain human overview on automation of content

Focus on machine readable rights is vital for efficient integration, development on creative interpretation of machine readable rights is needed to market niche content with maximum effectivity.

So who knows...

The tulipa “Fashion Look” might just rock the world

VisionsPictures.com

PureGreenImages

The leading image library for horticultural marketing